Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to you about the Proposed Final Judgment on Microsoft. 2 areas I am concerned on is that the judgment does not address the arbitrary nature of what products or services gets added to the Microsoft Operating System. By adding on otherwise standalone products to the OS, smaller companies have an unfair disadvantage of competing against an OS that already has a product that they are trying to sell.

Also, the judgment does not restrict Microsoft's ability to modify, alter or refuse to support computer industry standards, including Java, or to engage in campaigns to deceive developers of rival platforms, middleware or applications software. Java technologies exclusion in Microsoft's XP operating system is more than just an oversight.

Please include these concerns with others in the community to express my concern within the software industry of this anti-competitive threat that Microsoft will continue to have on this industry. Free competition will allow thriving new business to form and ultimately help the consumers with excellent products at competitive prices.
